

Enhance Your English Fluency in Business

Although English may not be your first language, you've achieved impressive results in an English-focused business environment.

Yet, something about the way you communicate still may not feel right.

As you advance in your career, and rise up the ranks in your company, the demands and expectations affiliated with your role will intensify. More will be required of you. Not only will you need to keep up your business skills, you will need to become more nuanced and elegant in the way you articulate your thoughts. This is essential as you set your eyes on promotion and advancement in the corporate world.

Business executives, who are highly accomplished in their careers, but their first language may not be English, frequently choose to work with me. They are anxious to improve their English fluency and the way they communicate.

ARE YOU EXPERIENCING ANY OF THESE CHALLENGES?

- 1 Although you are skilled and possess high level substantive knowledge of your field, you lack the confidence to open your mouth to articulate your thoughts and views in executive meetings.
- 2 It takes you longer to write emails or other documents in English, because you're searching for the correct word, or the correct way to compose a sentence.
- 3 You find your emails don't result in the response you intended, or you find your emails are ignored.
- 4 You tend to mix up which preposition to use after a verb, and the correct tense of a verb to use.

5 You've been promoted into an English-only workplace or region, and you need to boost your English fluency in order to communicate effectively, in writing and speaking, with your team.

6 You are apprehensive about having business phone calls with more senior executives, because you are not sure you can respond quickly enough with the right words and phrases.

7 You feel that you're not getting your point across with razor sharpness in your verbal or written communication.

READY TO ELEVATE YOUR SKILLS?

Ready to communicate like the effective executive you know you can be?

With a highly skilled level of knowledge and experience, along with the many English fluency graduates I have successfully coached, I can help you too. My executive coaching program, which is specifically tailored to elevate your English fluency and business communication skills, is your best option.

In eight short weeks, I will teach you how to effectively communicate with confidence. Together, we will address your unique communication style and strengthen your impact in every business setting. I will help you reach your goal and support you on your leadership path.

I am hired by major banks, engineering companies, commercial real estate companies, governments, and highly skilled executives, to deliver my effective 8-week coaching program. I hold a Doctorate of Education (1999) from the University of Toronto.
